

Abstract

The use of compositions containing anionic chitosan derivatives to treat contact lenses is described. The compositions are particularly useful for removing s protein deposits from contact lenses, but also serve to lubricate the surfaces of the lenses and enhance the comfort of the lenses when worn on the eyes.